

Understanding Impact

Meghan Rainsberry
CLOSER Communications Manager

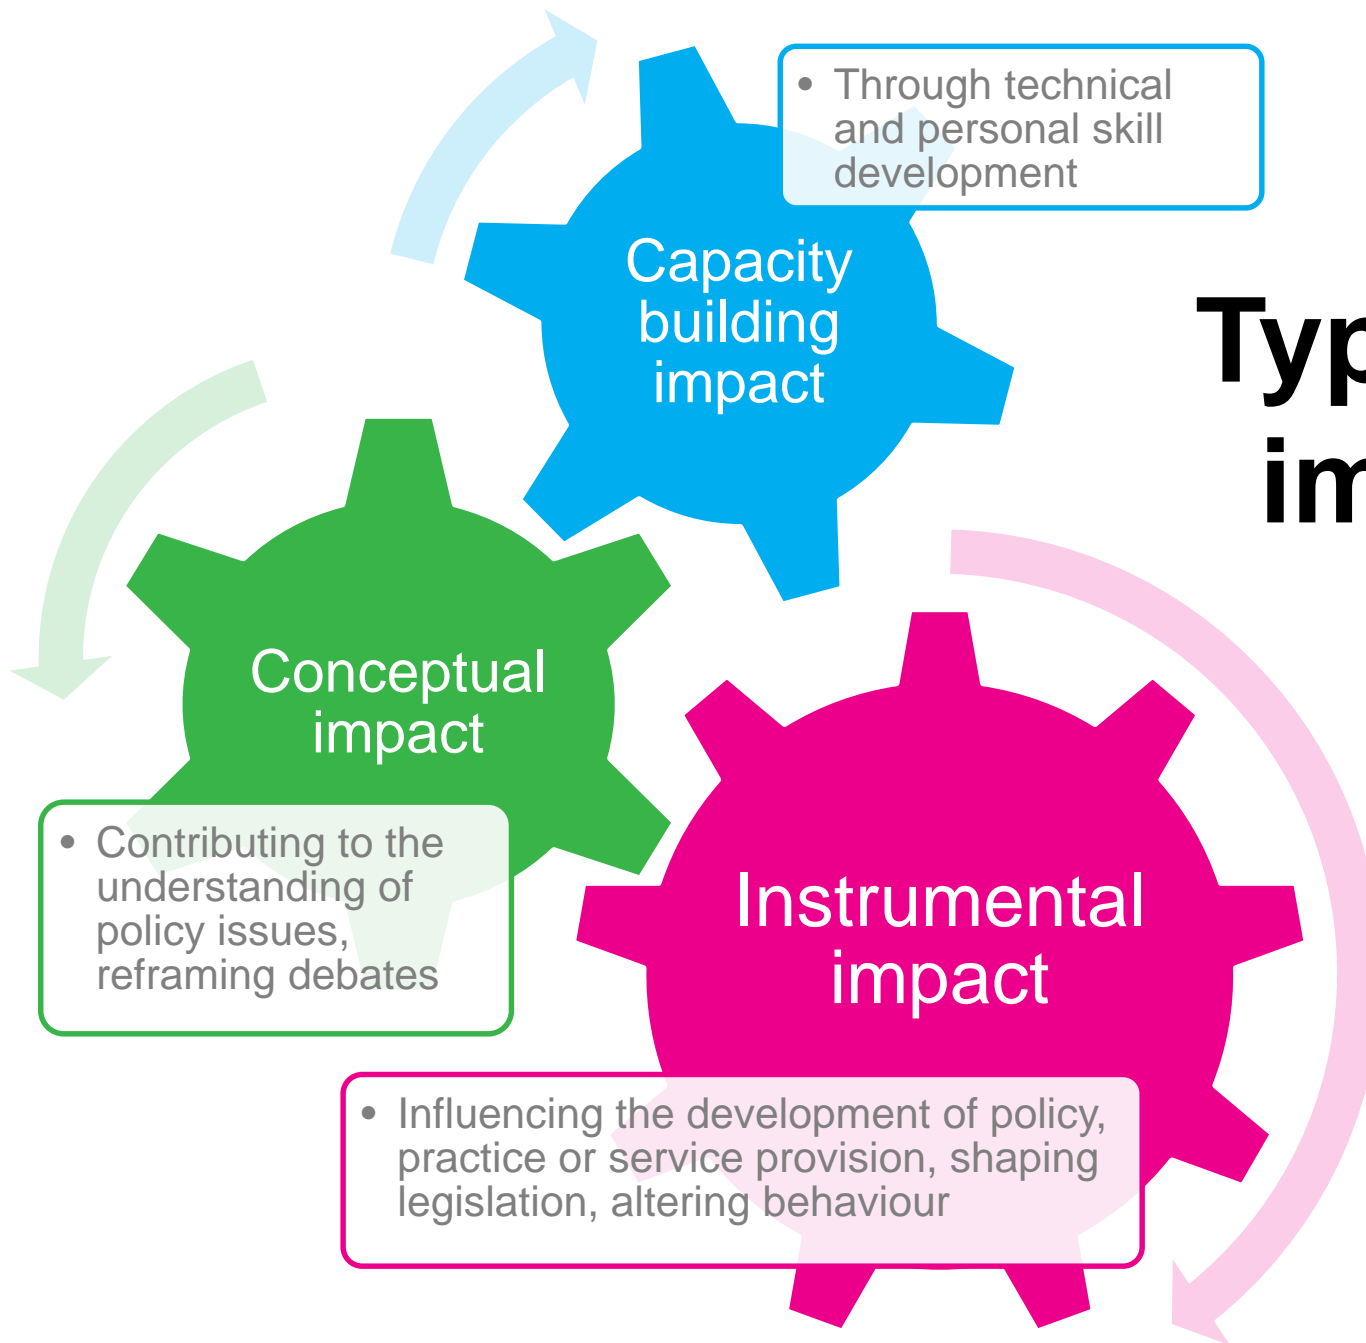

The studies

- MRC National Survey of Health and Development (1946 cohort)
- 1958 National Child Development Study
- 1970 British Cohort Study
- Millennium Cohort Study
- Life Study
- Avon Longitudinal Study of Parents and Children
- Southampton Women's Survey
- Hertfordshire Cohort Study
- Understanding Society

Overarching objective

To maximise the use, value and impact of the UK's longitudinal studies

Types of impact

Types of impact

Beneficiaries

- Contribution to significant scientific advances, in understanding method, theory and application

Scientific impact

Social and economic impact

- Contribution to society and the economy, that is of benefit to individuals, organisations and nations

Beneficiaries

- Contribution to significant scientific advances, in understanding method, theory and application

Scientific
impact

Social and economic impact

- Contribution to society and the economy, that is of benefit to individuals, organisations and nations

Workshop overview

- 13.30 Introduction to impact
Richard Bartholomew,
Former Head of Government Social Research
Vicky Jones,
Policy Advisor, HEFCE
- 13:55 Questions
- 14:10 Planning for impact (exercise)
- 14:45 Feedback and wrap-up
- 15:00 Close